A Terrible Fight.

A London corresponent under date of the 18 h instant writes; "Early this morning was a fearful and exciting battle in blos Exhibition at Liverpool. Delmonico, the most plucky tamer of beasts, has been exciting the nerves of the visitors for a long time by trifling in a cage with tree big forest floor. Five more lions, of a different kind, but very big also, arrived from Africa yesterday, and were put at once note the big cage with the three already at home there. They had no training, but Delmosico went in among them and thrilled 6.25 the crowd that filled the menagerie by an 7.49 neusually sensational performance.
9.24 "When he had done, Mills, Kora, his part-

10 00 per, went in with the lions and took a little 4 58 dog. This was repeated four times during 13 50 the day, and the five new lions were too much stunned by the huge, noisy crowd 21 00 about them and the repeated visits of the lady, gentleman and dog, to think of any-$6.25, 690 BOYS' SUITS, ranging in price from $2.25 left alone for the night by the attendants at 10 o'clock.

"After a while it became evident that there were two distinct sides in the battle and the new arrivals were pitted at unfair odds against the biggs of the seemed the times of the seemed that there were two distinct sides in the battle and the new arrivals were pitted at unfair odds against the biggs of the seemed that there were two distinct sides in the battle and the new arrivals were pitted at unfair odds against the biggs of the seemed that there were two distinct sides in the battle and the new arrivals were pitted at unfair odds against the biggs of the seemed the size of the seemed the seemed that the seemed the seeme and the new arrivals were pitted at unfair odds against the lions, who had been in possession. The efforts of the servant to separate them only increased their fury, and at last he sushed off for Delmonico, who was askeep near by in Edge lane. "On these in their rage hot iron was use less, even when applied to raw flesh. The lions responded to the burning sensation only by tearing away at each other more fiercely.

"At last Delmonico, fearing he would less his two greatest actors, took a resolu-tion which would probably not have occurred to any other man if the existence of the entire animal creation had been threat ened. He entered the cage half clad as he was and shut himself in. He next opened a door communicating with a second cage and drove into it like so many sheep the six lions that had been looking on.

"Meanwhile the other lions were still fighting, although much weaker. Del-monico's attempts to separate them were useless. They paid not the slightest at-tion to him, and although in their struggles they dashed against him, they were evident-

Over his wounds. Although conquerer he was not to be envied. His mane was gone and his body looked as though an especially wicked harrow had been repeatedly dragged over it. Blood trickled from a hundred uply wounds, and there is little hope that he will live. Curiously enough, not one of the lions had its tail bitten off in the fray, which seems to indicate that some code of honor exists among lions which prevents them over his wounds. Although conquerer he exists among lions which prevents them from making each other ridiculous, even in the deadliest combat.

"The other six lions will live, but they were so badly bitten that only two could be patched up to perform to day, and their mangled appearance terrified Mile. Kora's lit le dog out of all recollection of his role. The loss if the second lion dies will be about £400. In any case he will always remain a damaged lion."
